'To make the most of your visit to 'The City of Making', pop Bradt's new Cork City Guide into your pocket...up-to-date info on everything the visitor might need - from where to buy contemporary hand-made jewellery to where to drink vegetarian stout or eat Clonakilty black pudding crostini.' The Irish Times

Linda Fallon, born in Cork, has lived there on and off for the last ten years in between traveling extensively around the globe.

I could not have asked for a more detailed little handy dandy book on Cork City. This was my go-to book for everything regarding my Cork stay: directions, dining out, shopping, culture, pubs, and accommodation. In fact, I had blindly booked at a B&B before reading the book and after Ms. Fallon warned about its being on a steep hill I immediately found other, better accommodation. This book is also the perfect pocket size for backpackers or to tote around in your purse while you shop through the city. I am positively in love with Cork and that love is due in part to Ms. Fallon's book.
