Everything You Need To Know About Teen Suicide (Need To Know Library)

Synopsis

Accelerated Reader is a program based on the fact that students become more motivated to read if they are tested on the content of the books they have read and are rewarded for correct answers. Students read each book, individually take the test on the computer, and receive gratification when they score well. Schools using the Accelerated Reader program have seen a significant increase in reading among their students. These books help teens, who often feel uncomfortable talking about their problems, find the information they need.

Customer Reviews

Grade 6-9 This adequate introduction includes some sound psychological principles, but the writing is dull, repetitive, and patronizing. Despite some dramatic fictionalization, the staccato sentences and oversimplified style add up to a book that will make readers wish they had picked a better one, such as Margaret Hyde's Suicide: the Hidden Epidemic (Watts, 1986) or Patricia Hermes' A Time to Listen: Preventing Youth Suicide (HBJ, 1987). A plodding paragraph on how life can be like a roller coaster is followed by an old stock black-and-white photo of a roller coaster (yawn). The glossary explains words such as "anger" and "emotion" and misdefines "myth." High/low books such as this cannot get away with leaching the interest right out of a fascinating, important subject. The list of sources of more information has no needed 800 hotline number, and the reading list suggests titles that are far superior to this one. Anne Osborn, Riverside Public Library, Calif. Copyright 1988 Reed Business Information, Inc. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.
